

Today, Pam Villers came by from the East Cobb Church of Christ, asking for sewing supplies for Haiti. The church supports two orphanages in the countryside there, which is now flooded with refugees from the capital. They had already planned to send a 40-foot container there before the quake hit and now of course the need is acute.

So with visions of big-eyed children dancing in my head, I began weeding out fabrics to be made into bedding and clothing and whatever else. Pam was thrilled when we began loading her smallish car. 194 bolts later, Pam could barely see out of her car, tears were flowing and a good time was had by all!

However, the need is still very great and we have more thread, needles, etc, to give so Pam will be back before the container leaves in early March.

If you have anything to donate, you may leave it here and Pam will pick it up.

Here is what they need: Any school supplies, any sewing or knitting supplies, any summer clothes, especially sandals, black clothing for funerals and white blouses, toys, cooking utensils, toiletries, eating utensils, women's hygiene products, towels, food.

Scour your closets and stash places. This is a chance to travel lightly into the new year!!

Love and peace out from us at Red Hen.
